Library book sale runs through Sunday in Tonkawa

An enormous book sale runs through Sunday, Aug. 7 at Northern Oklahoma College's Foster-Piper Fieldhouse in Tonkawa.

Hours of the sale are Friday, Aug. 5 (9 a.m. - 8 p.m.), Saturday, Aug. 6 (9 a.m. - 6 p.m. with books at half-price), and Sunday, Aug. 7 (1 p.m. - 4 p.m., books are free).

A preview (at a cost of $20) was held Thursday evening.

The book sale will generate funds for the new Pickens Learning Commons library renovation in the Vineyard Library/ Administration Building. The new-found library space will provide enhanced student study areas and new technology. This will become a focus area for students at NOC.

The project will include new technology, study tables and chairs, soft loveseats and chairs, new reception area, shelving, and carpet.

It will also include the addition of two new permanent murals totaling 100'x20' by artist Yatika Starr Fields along with a constant collection of various art works from the Doctor Pickens Museum, Inc. to be on long-term display.

Fields has already created two existing murals in the Cultural Engagement Center, commissioned by the Doctor Pickens Museum in November 2020 and completed in June 2021.

"We are so excited to continue to partner with

Hugh Pickens and the Doctor Pickens Museum, said NOC Vice President for Development and Executive Director to the NOC Foundation Sheri Snyder. "We are grateful for friends such as the Pickens who have chosen to share their gifts with us."

When completed, the Pickens Learning Commons will include the Cultural Engagement Center, Testing Center, career and transfer services, library services, enhanced technology, tutoring services, and an art gallery.

Area patrons visited the NOC Book Sale on Friday at Foster-Piper Fieldhouse in Tonkawa. The sale runs through Sunday, book are half price on Saturday and free on Sunday. (photo by John Pickard/Northern Oklahoma College)

Regents' approve junior concurrent

Northern Oklahoma College Regents approved a measure Wednesday that allows high school juniors to receive a concurrent enrollment tuition waiver.

The tuition waiver for academically qualified high school juniors will be available starting in Fall 2022. Juniors are eligible to take up to nine college credit hours per year. The tuition waiver does not include academic fees or books.

The Oklahoma legislature approved the tuition waiver for juniors in the most recent legislative session.

“This is a great opportunity for high school students to earn college credit at a greatly reduced cost to their families,” said NOC President Dr. Clark Harris. “We are so pleased the legislature is waiving tuition for juniors, this will help so many students get a head start on their college experience.”

Currently, seniors have been eligible to participate in the tuition waiver program while juniors could take college courses did not receive a tuition waiver.

A student taking full advantage of the program may earn as many as 27 college credit hours during high school, nine (9) credit hours during the junior year and 18 credit hours during the senior year.

Dr. Harris promotes library book sale at regents' meeting

The Northern Oklahoma College Tonkawa Library Renovation project continues and the college is preparing for the NOC Book Sale, President Dr. Clark Harris reported to the board of regents Wednesday. The NOC Book Sale, set for Aug. 4-7 in the Foster-Piper Fieldhouse, will allow community members to purchase books that have been removed from the NOC library collection.

The library renovation will transform the current library into the Pickens Learning Commons for this fall.

Vice President for Academic Affairs Diana Watkins and Vice President for Student Affairs Jason Johnson reported that seven NOC athletic teams earned NJCAA Academic All-American Team status with each earning at least a 3.0 GPA. Thirty-three NOC athletes earned a 4.0 GPA.

Johnson added that the NOC Women's Soccer team finished second academically in the nation with an overall average GPA of 3.61. The winner earned a 3.62 GPA.

Vice President for Financial Affairs Anita Simpson provided the monthly financial report including project allocations and purchases. She also provided a status report on the HEERF (COVID-19) fund allocations.

Sheri Snyder, Vice President for Community Relations & Development, announced the Country and Western Group "Shenandoah" will appear Sept. 29 in the Renfro Lectureship Series at NOC Tonkawa's Kinzer Performing Arts Center.

Vice President for Enrollment Management Dr. Rick Edgington reported that enrollment is progressing for Fall 2022 announcing a number of targeted enrollment dates for late July and August as NOC prepares for the Aug. 22 start of the fall semester. He also shared that NOC had increased enrollment for summer semester over last summer's enrollment.

The board appointed chairman Jami Groendyke and Brad Fox as Group One Trustees to the Northern Oklahoma College Foundation and reappointed Lyndee Funk and Tom Poole as Community Trustees to the foundation.

Regents also approved the Course Catalog and Student Handbook. They were also provided information on the Graphic Standards Guide, Information Technology Plan, FY2022-23 Academic Plan, and the Strategic Plan Quarterly Update.

The September regents' meeting will be held in the Brown Conference Room in Stillwater Sept. 14 at 1 p.m.

Stillwater nursing apps accepted this fall

The Northern Oklahoma College Nursing Program will accept applications for spring semester 2023 start on the Stillwater campus through Oct. 1.

Applicants must meet minimum program requirements for admission and be accepted to Northern Oklahoma College prior to acceptance in the Nursing Program. Applicants are selected based on qualifications and space availability.

NOC has nursing programs at Tonkawa, Enid, and Stillwater locations. Apply by March 1 for admission on all three campuses for fall semester 2023.

Dr. Paul Bowers publishes poetry book

NOC Enid Language Arts Instructor Dr. Paul Bowers recently published his third book of poetry, released in May 2022.

The book, titled Ten Acres of the Universe, is published by Turning Plow Press.

The following is an excerpt from a review by Kansas poet Roy Beckemeyer:

“In the first poem of Ten Acres of the Universe, Paul Bowers shows he can wrap an event as timeless and familiar as spring plowing in words and images as fresh and unanticipated as spring’s surprising renewals. Elsewhere, he points out “stars and galaxies ... heading home at dawn, / the dying glow of their headlights / disappearing over the farthest hilltop of the Milky Way” and we find ourselves both safe at home and feeling we have traveled to the far reaches of the heavens.

In Bowers’ Ten Acres, “Before we know it, it is Sunday evening. / The birds abandon the sky / and fold their songs like wings.” At a check-out line, a man behind him “...smiled when my wife waved him forward / as if such small acts coaxed the soul / nearer the skin’s surface, and once, there, / took a long quiet breath, exhaled, waved back.” He turns his mind to documenting the migration and evolution of love as years advance:

--for his wife, on hearing a patient in a doctor’s office quietly humming the spiritual “This Little Light of Mine”: “I am waiting for my wife to return / from the inner chambers of the heart clinic; / and here, in my exile ... I can’t for the life of me / remember what that little light is / the woman only four chairs over softly sings about.”

--for his mother, when blowing leaves remind her of him as a child, burying himself in a raked pile: “And in her mind, lately filled / with the debris of dementia ... I bury myself again / and again in that mound of piling thoughts where I will remain hidden / and safe...”

--and, for his hospitalized father “...dying in a sunken submarine. / If I had a wrench I’d break the porthole glass / but it’s too late, it’s been too long / and he is fathoms deep.”

Arranged in four chapters, the seasons from spring through winter, these poems capture the universality of the passage of our collective years, the patterns of hours and skies and everyday encounters that make up our days; they are like string reminders tied around your heart that will bring back moments from your own life, vivid and alive, some quietly peaceful, some devastatingly poignant. This is a book I will keep close and read often; I suspect you will want to do so, as well.”

Other books by Bowers include two poetry collections: The Lone, Cautious, Animal Life (2016) and Occasional Hymns (2018), and a collection of short stories, Like Men, Made Various (2006). Bowers has taught at NOC Enid since 1999.

The 31st Annual Arts Adventure Camp had over 50 students attend with nine instructors for the four-day event July 18-21. (photo by John Pickard/Northern Oklahoma College)

Fifty students attend Arts Adventure Camp

Over fifty students sang, painted, drew, danced, sculpted and made videos, photographs, jewelry and masks during the 31st annual Arts Adventure summer camp at Northern Oklahoma College from July 18-21.

Nine expert artists from NOC and around the state offered thirteen unique classes in visual and performing arts for area youth in grades six to twelve, and some students attended from as far away as Colorado.

Some new classes offered this year were Linocut Printmaking and Digital Escape Room. Sponsored by Arts Adventure Foundation with support from the Oklahoma Arts Council, NOC, National Endowment for the Arts, local businesses and private donors, the popular four-day camp culminated in an Open House for family and friends to visit the studios on campus and see the creative outcome of the week's work in visual art.

Additionally, the performance classes showed their accomplishments in the theater of the Kinzer Performing Art Center.

The summer camp began in 1991 and was held on the grounds of the Marland Mansion. In 2000, it moved to the campus of Northern Oklahoma College in Tonkawa. Arts Adventure is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization. Visit Arts Adventure Facebook page for photos and videos. Plans have already begun for the 2023 Arts Adventure Camp tentatively scheduled for July 17-20.
